

ABOUT THE AUTHORS

---

Jane Adolphe is Associate Professor of Law, Ave Maria School of Law, Naples, Florida. She holds a BA from the University of Calgary; Common Law and Civil Law Degrees (LL.B/BCL) from McGill University in Montreal; and a License and Doctorate in Canon Law (JCL/JCD) from the Pontificia Università della Santa Croce in Rome. In April 2011, she accepted a special assignment with the Secretariat of State of the Holy See.

Msgr. Robert J. Batule is a priest of the Diocese of Rockville Centre and is on the faculty of the Seminary of the Immaculate Conception in Lloyd Harbor, New York, where he teaches systematic theology. He was the first Chaplain of the Society of Catholic Social Scientists and is a member of the Fellowship of Catholic Scholars and University Faculty for Life. He has published articles, essays, and homilies in various Catholic publications.

Gerard V. Bradley is Professor of Law at the University of Notre Dame, where he edits (with John Finnis) The American Journal of Jurisprudence. Professor Bradley also holds research Fellowships at The Witherspoon Institute in Princeton, New Jersey, and at the Hoover Institution of Stanford University. His most recent book, 21st Century Challenges to Religious Liberty, is forthcoming from Cambridge University Press.

Stephen Bullivant is Lecturer in Theology and Ethics at St Mary's University College, United Kingdom. He was previously Research Fellow in Theology at Wolfson College, Oxford, and Research Fellow in Catholic Social Teaching at St Mary's. He studied at Christ Church, Oxford, where he completed his DPhil on Catholic dogmatic theology and contemporary atheism. In June 2010 he received the Catherine Mowry LaCugna Award for New Scholars from the Catholic Theological Society of America. He is a co-editor of The Oxford Handbook of Atheism (with Michael Ruse), forthcoming from Oxford University Press and his current research interests include the new evangelization.

William F. Campbell is a Professor Emeritus of Economics at Louisiana State University. He is currently the Executive Secretary of The Philadelphia Society. He has published widely in The American Economic Review, The History of Political Economy, Modern Age, Intercollegiate Review, and several other publications. He served Ronald Reagan as a member of the National Graduate Fellowship Board and served two terms as President of the Association of Christian Economists.

Rupert Ederer was born in Germany in 1923 and immigrated to America in 1926. He was educated at St. Bonaventure University and St. Louis University. He taught at various colleges and retired from Buffalo State College—State University of New York. Dr. Ederer has written 200 articles and written or translated 15 books including Liberalism, Socialism and Christian Social Order and the Lehrbuch der Nationaloekonomie by Fr. Heinrich Pesch, S.J.

Joel Gibbons has worked in the financial markets in Chicago for nearly thirty years, initially with American National Bank and Harris Bank, and subsequently as an entrepreneur in his own trading firm. Previous to going to work in the Loop, he was an Assistant Professor of Economics at Illinois Institute of Technology. He has lectured extensively on campus and on finance industry forums. He holds a doctorate in economics from the Graduate School of Business of the University of Chicago and a doctorate in mathematics from Northwestern University.

David A. Gilbert received his PhD in Latin American History from the University of Iowa in 2003. He is currently an Assistant Professor at Clayton State University in Morrow, Georgia.

Gary D. Glenn is Distinguished Teaching Professor Emeritus of Political Science at Northern Illinois University where he has taught since 1966. He is a student of the history of political philosophy, American political thought, and of the relation of religion to both. He has paid particular attention throughout his career to Xenophon, Hobbes, Locke, and the American Founding. In recent years, his scholarship has focused primarily on the relation of Catholicism to American democracy.

William Gould is the Assistant Dean of Juniors at Fordham College at Rose Hill, where he teaches in both the Honors program and the American Catholic Studies program. He has published reviews and articles in various journals including The Washington Post, Commonweal, The Journal of Catholic Social Thought and Communio. He is currently completing a book on John Courtney Murray.

Kenneth L. Grasso is Professor of Political Science at Texas State University-San Marcos. He has written widely on Catholic social thought and has edited several books including John Courtney Murray and the American Civil Conversation (Eerdmans, 1992), Catholicism and Religious Freedom: Contemporary Reflections on Vatican II's Declaration on Religious Liberty (Sheed & Ward, 2006), and Rethinking Rights: Historical, Political, and Philosophical Perspectives (University of Missouri Press, 2009).

L. Joseph Hebert is Associate Professor of Political science and Leadership Studies and Director of Pre-law Studies at St. Ambrose University in Davenport, Iowa. He is the author of More than Kings and Less Than Men: Tocqueville on the Promise and Perils of Democratic Individualism (2010) and co-editor of Alexis de Tocqueville and the Art of Democratic Statesmanship (2011).

Thaddeus J. Kozinski teaches Philosophy, Theology, and Humanities at Wyoming Catholic College. He is the author of The Political Problem of Religious Pluralism: And Why Philosophers Can't Solve It (Lexington Books, 2010).

Stephen M. Krason is Professor of Political Science and Legal Studies at Franciscan University of Steubenville and Co-Founder and President of the Society of Catholic Social Scientists.

John Larrivee is Associate Professor of Economics in the Bolte School of Business, Mount St. Mary's University, Emmitsburg, Maryland. Though his specialization is in labor and public economics, in recent years he has turned to moral questions in economics, about which he has presented regularly at SCSS meetings. Recent publications include a chapter reviewing the Compendium of the Social Doctrine's section on labor in Catholic Social Thought: American Reflections on the Compendium, D. Paul Sullins and Anthony Blasi, eds., 2009.

James Likoudis, President Emeritus, Catholics United for the Faith (CUF), taught for twenty years in public and private schools, and has written and lectured extensively on catechetics, the family, liturgy, and ecumenism in the United States and abroad. He translated Renee Casin's St. Thomas Aquinas, Orthodoxy, and Neo-Modernism in the Church (1977), and edited Aquinas' On Reasons for Our Faith Against the Muslims, Greeks, and Armenians (2002). His co-authored The Pope, the Council and the Mass is now in its third edition. Three of his works deal with Eastern Orthodoxy: Ending the Byzantine Greek Schism (1992); The Divine Primacy of the Bishop of Rome and Modern Eastern Orthodoxy (2002); and Eastern Orthodoxy and the See of Rome (2006).

David G. Mullan has taught history at Cape Breton University, Sydney, Nova Scotia, since 1989. He has written and edited seven books on the religious culture of early-modern Scotland, including Scottish Puritanism, 1590–1638 (Oxford University Press, 2000) and most recently Narratives of the Religious Self in Early-Modern Scotland (Ashgate, 2010). He is currently studying the historiography of French-speaking Reformed authors in the nineteenth century.

Michael Novak is the George Frederick Jewett Chair in Religion and Public Policy (emeritus) at the American Enterprise Institute. His many books include The Catholic Ethic and the Spirit of Capitalism (Free Press, 1993), On Two Wings: Humble Faith and Common Sense at the American Founding ((Encounter 2002), and No One Sees God: The Dark Night of Atheists and Believers (Doubleday, 2008) His website is www.michaelnovak.net.

John F. Quinn is Professor of History at Salve Regina University in Newport, Rhode Island. He specializes in American Catholic and Irish American history, and his publications include “John Courtney Murray, SJ: The Man JFK Didn’t Understand,” Crisis (October 1999): 32–37.

Juan José Ramírez Ochoa is a professor at the Henry Hazlitt Center at Universidad Francisco Marroquín in Guatemala. He was an assistant to Professor Joseph Keckeissen from 2003 to 2010. He can be reached at estratega@ufm.edu.

Michael J. Ruzala is a professional catechetical leader at St. Pius X Roman Catholic Church in suburban Buffalo, New York, working with adult and child faith formation. He holds a BA in Philosophy and Theology and an MA in Theology and Christian Ministry from Franciscan University of Steubenville and has spoken and published on theological and catechetical topics.

Joseph A. Varacalli is S.U.N.Y. Distinguished Service Professor and Director of the Center for Catholic Studies at Nassau Community College. He is the author of The Catholic Experience in America and Bright Promise, Failed Community: Catholics and the American Public Order and a co-editor of the Encyclopedia of Catholic Social Thought,

Social Science, and Social Policy. Co-founder of the SCSS with Stephen M. Krason, he is a member of the Board of Directors of the Fellowship of Catholic Scholars and the Advisory Board of the Catholic League for Religious and Civil Rights.

Francis Woehrling was born in Alsace and graduated from French Lycée in 1952 with the Baccalauréat in philosophy. He holds a BA in theology (1954), an MA in Economics and Law, and an MA in Sociology from the University of Strasbourg (1961). He obtained an MBA (1963) and began PhD studies in economics (industrial organization) at Michigan State University. From 1966 to 1972, he worked at the International Monetary Fund. From 1972 to 1999 he worked in Brussels at the European Commission Monetary Directorate of the European Economic Community. Since 2000, he has studied and written about the anthropological foundations of Christian economics, including two articles in the Journal of Markets and Morality (2001, 2003).

C. J. Wolfe is a PhD student in Political Science at Claremont Graduate University. His concentration is on political philosophy and American politics, particularly on ethics, constitutional law, and institutions. He received a BA in Philosophy from the University of Dallas in 2009, and expects to finish up his doctoral coursework in spring 2012. He is also associate editor of and contributor to the Claremont Independent, a student-run journal based at Claremont McKenna College.